Doused with tangled crepe paper, laughing couples go into hysterics with questionable glances from other PG prom dancers. Listening in on study hall talk, Alan Huddleston throws in accurate gossip. Junior powderpuff coaches, Keith Collins, Max DeSosa, and Ray Rawlings, go wild over a correct offensive play. Strumming a Christmas carol, Maggie Wingfield serenades French Club members during a holiday meeting.

The mystery . . .

What kindles the spark,
which, when fanned,
bursts into the constantly growing flame behind the exhilaration of living?

The fire of life . . .

never understood,
never unfolded,
and never dying!

*PG burns
with excitement*

Fire of Action
Imagination
conjures
originality

Evolution of an idea . .

originating from minds blended and individuals united in the common course of final action.

Newly purchased faces camouflage bands-men Kenneth Sweat and Billy Beachy, during Disney World exploration.

With the mini-gym nearly packed, basketball fans trail into PG, hoping to grab a seat before the doors close.

Perfection shows through as Mr. Mazza straightens Ian McGregor's uniform.

Trotting down the sidelines with Cliff Crockell and Bill Gook, senior powderpuff cheerleader, Roy Elder, travels over to greet junior fans.

Guitar strings vibrate a self-composed tune as Mr. Taylor entertains Percy Mason in his wife's second period biology class.

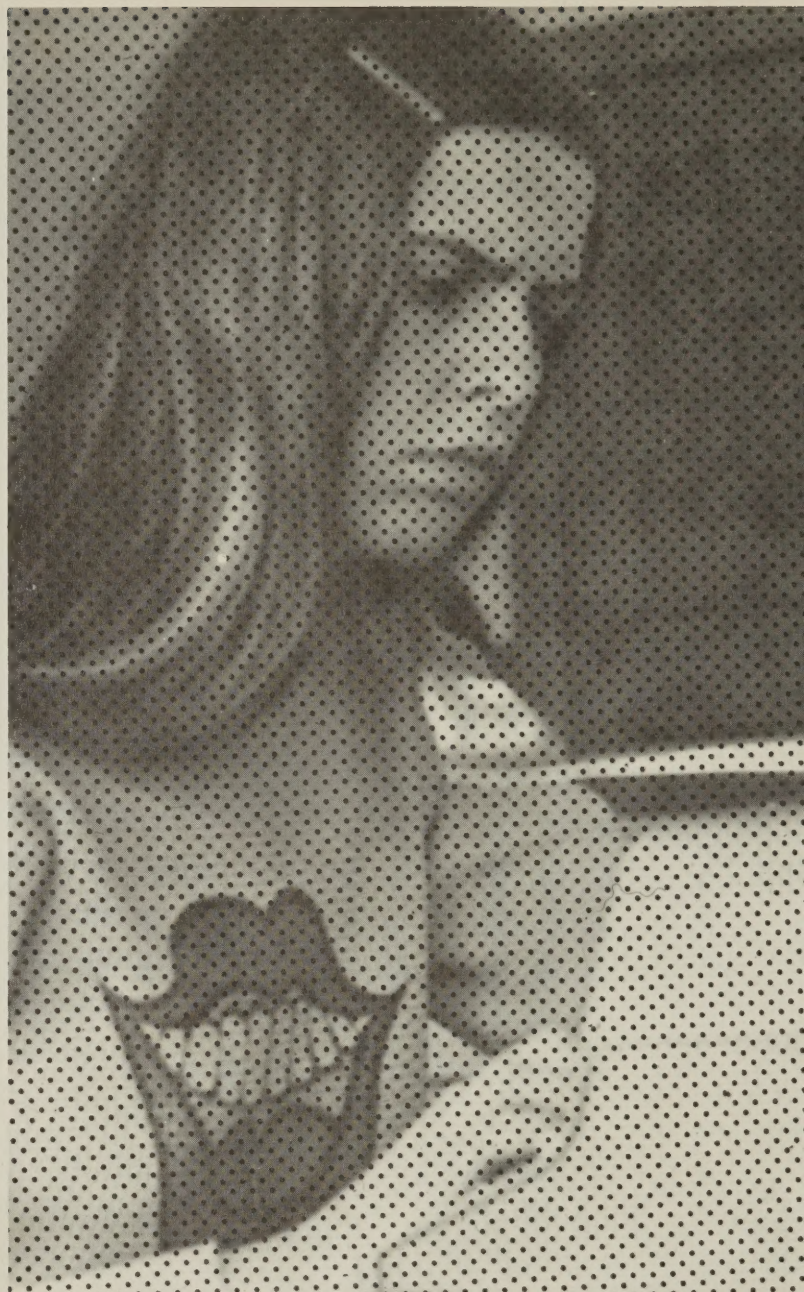

A blocked letter assignment forces Donna Drebber to attack the keyboard during second period typing class.

Cafeteria study hall crew watches Susan Hawks referee Jimmy Toombs — Alan Chudoba arm wrestling match.

Sneaking in an afternoon English class snack, Ray Rawlings catches a suspicious glance from his teacher.

Stretching to overtake spinning ball, Evelyn Roney bops volleyball farther into the air.

The absorbing mind . . .
encompassed by knowledge and opportunity,
limited only
by one's own definition of achievement.

Inspiration yields achievement

Fire of Determination

The conquered goal . . .
a symbol of overwhelming odds defeated
by fiery effort
promoting the confidence of the victors.

Hunger for victory destines accomplishment

Fire of Competition

Strung across 20-yard line, signs rip apart during Green Machine entrance. Filled to the rim with needed game-time water, an original PG milkcan and a ready-to-go drink carrier sit on the bench waiting to soak scorching throats.

Strained expression covers watching PG wrestlers as a Royal matman struggles to pin opponent. Dodging for room, Bill Claiborne moves soul into the game while John Bott snares a rebound. Ronnie Wade and Jimmy Toombs pray for line drive hit to charge Royal score. With screams vibrating from the crowd, cheerleaders Iris Lieber, Anita Minor, and Mary Kaiser clap time to chantered rhythm.

Fire of Expression

Barbara Miller lets loose tension
by joking over lunch gossip.
School morning drowsiness overtakes
Lear Munford before 8:55 bell.
Trying not to goof on a three carbon yearbook final, Diane Olgesby backspaces unjustified caption.
Wrapped up in stage action, Ellen Robinson, Cheryl Smith, and Debbie
Robinson enjoy Santa's entrance.
Gulping down water in between candy and class, Susan Hawks rushes to beat the next period bell.
Caught by the camera, Eileen England makes a pretty picture.

*Originality
intensifies personality*

Unmasked expression . . .

revealing
the height of happiness,
the depth of despair,
the strength of determination,
the hope of the inspired.

SCHOOL LIFE

Wheeling through empty PG halls.
Unicycle rider and yearbook photographer
Lear Munford shatters Saturday annual staff concentration.

On senior trip to Charlottesville, Karen
Aldridge eyes UVA-UNC pile-up while Kathy DeSalvo searches football program for identical jersey number.

Tired stew stirrer Diane Oglesby avoids surging smoke while mixing up vegetables.

Brutal defensive seniors drive on in-play colleagues from field sideline during Powderpuff battle.

Boundless energy sparks student life

Streamers entangle atmosphere

Poise and polish dropped from sight as ecstatic couples unwound to the rhythmic beat of the Black River Circus. With "A Song in Our Hearts" as a theme, the 1971 prom took on a special meaning. The alma mater, hanging from the ceiling on a green and gold heart, set the pace for a school spirited atmosphere. Saving mementos of their last prom, seniors savagely ripped at artistic decorations. With indistinct memories of balloons and streamers, worn couples vacated the battered gym.

Roswita Caines searches among dancing couples for her lost date.

Wrapped together amidst colorful streamers, Gary Mullens and his date live it up with laughter.

Maryland Fields, Kay Hill, Crystal Adams, and Darrell Bullock enjoy refreshing punch during intermission.

Juniors give James Taylor a boost to down colorful balloons.

Carolyn Moots, Dennis Belonte, Ronnie Wade, and Susan Clark enjoy dancing to the beat of the Black River Circus.

Grads fill Senior Week, plan grand slam finale

On the heels of the Prom rolled Senior Week and graduation. Laura Rawlings, chairman of Senior Week activities, crammed two picnics, swimming and skating parties, a pancake supper, and a sochop in the first four days of June. Then on June 6 at 7:00 PM, weary seniors filed onto the athletic field for initial cap and gown graduation ceremony, baccalaureate service. Reverend Darreld R. Shoop, father of senior Paul Shoop, delivered the sermon. Seniors roused early the next morning for practice and a group graduation shot in caps and gowns. That same night they trooped to the Hopewell Moose Lodge for sirloins. Principal Thomas George challenged the group to always try their best in all their endeavors. Preparations then got underway for Class Night. The class song presented a slight difficulty, but Robert Van Epps with classmate help ironed out kinks

Brad Turner digs into pancakes at supper. Vicki Andrews and crew show bewildered and confused glances as song leader Robert Van Epps explains melody and words of "Onward and Upward." Grasping hands, Mr. George passes on prized PG diploma to Bryant Thweatt. Coach Wells lifts pancakes from cafeteria grill as Mr. MacBarnes balances hot pan.

Keith Hatch and Iva Noblin wonder if Charlie Swineford's tug on zipper will yield positive results in time. Valedictorian Mary Lilley delivers her final speech as a high school student. Suppressing joy and excitement, the '71 graduates solemnly march off the field. Superintendent Dr. Rooks opens ceremony by congratulating the Class of 71.

June 11 proves big night for 261 Royals

Twenty-seven seniors pulled top scholastic awards and service awards plus 16 grads nabbed scholarships at Class Night Exercises on June 9. Marching to "Pomp and Circumstance" on June 11, 261 seniors paced past the crowded bleachers to the field. Margaret Barfoot's salutation address trailed the opening remarks by Superintendent James E. Rooks. Closing her talk, Margaret reminded the Senior Class that "the past should not be so dear to us as to set a limit to the future. For the true glory of graduation is in the going on." The number one honor graduate Mary Lilley terminated the student participation. The band joined in with a special selection "We'll Sing in the Sunshine." Following the presentation of diplomas, the principal, Thomas George, called for the turning of the tassels, designating final parting from PGHS.

Availables decrease by six

A sparkle of diamonds appeared throughout the faculty this year as six of our former singles decided to settle down. Miss Carpenter and Miss Minor promised themselves in the past school year to Buddy Westhouse and David Lamb. After a long separation, their fiancées returned from Vietnam to take their vows. Glowing with happiness, Mrs. Kerkhoff, formerly Miss Stevenson, took off for her honeymoon in Mexico with her bridegroom. In a simple summer ceremony, Miss Masquelier became Mrs. Dowdy, with radiant expectations. Mr. Broady, one of the previous swinging bachelors, led Miss Celeste Thompson to the altar in mid October. Mrs. Merrix, previously Miss Pollock, followed the fad at Christmas.

Visiting PG, Mr. Dowdy interviews wife's job hunting DE student, Mary Ann Mobley.

Stealing away from drink machine crowd at basketball halftime, Mr. and Mrs. Broady scan new trophy case. Married but still in the courtin' stage, Mr. Merrix helps Mrs. Merrix out of the car.

Mrs. Kerkhoff and her husband pose in front of the Pyramid of the Sun during their honeymoon in Mexico.

Mrs. Westerhouse, taking advantage of quietness at PGHS, gives her husband an afternoon tour of the school. At the Fort Lee Officers Club, Capt. and Mrs. Lamb look over ballroom as a possible Junior-Senior Prom site.

Mr. Janosko returns to PG

Mr. John Janosko started his relationship with the Prince George School System as a bus driver and eventually worked his way to head day custodian of PGHS. This resident of Disputanta established himself as a vital asset to the faculty, administration, and especially the student body. After a raise in salary, Mr. Janosko transferred to the Maintenance Department and left PG helpless and heartbroken. The man who did everything, from lining athletic fields to refunding lost money from Coke machines, left the people who thought so much of him. Only one semester passed before Mr. Janosko returned to custodian work to the relief and joy of those he left behind. Whenever a window got broken, a light bulb blew, or the furnace went on the blink, Mr. Janosko wasted no time in seeing that the job got done.

Before erecting roof-top Christmas tree, Mr. Janosko replaces light. Mr. Janosko lines off football field on Friday afternoon for home game. Biting her finger, Cathy Chudoba hopes Mr. Janosko can find change. Balancing atop of a ladder, Mr. Janosko replaces damaged ceiling tile. During homeroom, Mr. MacBarnes and Mr. Janosko spend 15 minutes gabbing. Mr. Janosko hands Willard Johnson stray chair to store in gym closet.

Over 1150 crowded students enrolled in the fall term of 1971-72 at Prince George High School. The school, originally built in 1953 to accommodate 800 students, exemplified the overcrowded conditions. The predicament forced classes to meet in the uncomfortable cafeteria annex and band-room. Congested hallways between classes forced many students into unexcused tardies, and lunch blocks seemed short as some students spent twenty restless minutes standing in the lunch line. Miss Pittman started turning away students as even the library suffered from the overcrowding. Students no longer swarmed into the library to do make-up work. Under the new fire law, Prince George's "mini" gym's capacity fell to a measly 300 rooters.

Shrinking halls crowd students

Reluctant second period English class listens to Mrs. Breeding ramble on about the four basic functions of the sentence in the clamor of the cafeteria annex. Mrs. Rusnak pauses to regain her breath during routine lecture on the Bill of Rights in her bandroom history class. Crushed Cathy LeGrand experiences crowded hallways after third period. During third lunch block, Jane Cole finds a moment of relaxation from the crowded confinement of the cafeteria. Prospective members of the Board of Supervisors listen to Mr. Horne's promises at the September Prince George Education Association meeting. Bob Jarvis, pushed into the hall because of limited library space, labors over biology make-up test.

McLean seizes third year title

A special sparkle always found in the air on homecoming night added an extra twinge of excitement for Royal fans at the opening kick off. The PG Green Machine stormed through a General defense to a 26 to 14 victory. A variation in halftime activities captivated an audience already tense with anticipation. Replacing the traditional car procession, the escorted candidates for the 1971 Homecoming court promenaded onto the field. Once again PG bestowed the coveted honors on a deserving Mary McLean. On a float that resembled a throne, Debbie Harrison relinquished her crown to the new queen. Her Royal Court included junior attendant Sandy Rawlings and the sophomore attendant Linda Antenucci. The band saluted each attendant as the majorettes formed a crown.

Debbie Harrison smiles warmly as she reminisces her reign as 1970 Homecoming queen.

Halfback André Holmes struggles up-field much to the dismay of three Dinwiddie Generals.

A perfect pass into the hands of Bill Claiborne arouses a Royal cheer. Members of the 1971 Homecoming Court smile radiantly while posing for a professional picture.

As the band played a special salute, Linda Antenucci, escorted by David Crockell, floats toward the platform. Smiling, Mary McLean, Homecoming Queen, accepts her bouquet of flowers from Mr. George Sandy Rawlings bubbles over as Mr. George bestows junior Homecoming honors on her.

Passing the Safe Hunters test, Jane Cole happily checks out badge from Coach Smith.

Sam wins a pat from Dave Buffkin after his retrieving exhibition.

The first day of hunting season finds Cliff McDaniel, Brenda Burchett, and Becky Talley a majority in third period history.

Rambunctious labrador retriever, Cinder, runs circles around Coach Swineford,

In school parking lot, Coach Collins observes Lee Elledge as he scans band on duck they killed before school hours.

Hunters tramp through woods on November 20

Vacant classrooms minus a good part of the male population on November 20 reflected the school day. Teachers placed the blame on the first day of hunting season. Hunting tales echoed throughout PG halls as one boy said to another, "Biggest buck I ever saw, woulda gotten him if my gun hadn't jammed!" or "I could have tagged an eight pointer only I was waiting for a bigger one to come along!" At the end of each day, guys dashed to their cars ready to jump a deer for one quick shot. For the very first year, girls along with boys sat in 4 days of the Safe Hunters Course taught by PG game warden, Garland Foster. Hunters passing the written test received a certificate and a badge for their efforts. Coach Swineford brought his labrador retriever, Sam, to class giving tips on training and caring of duck dogs. Teachers and wild game breathed a sigh of relief when January 5 rolled about. Hunting season halted as school returned to normal attendance.

Juniors handle England

This year marked the return of powderpuff football to Prince George. Masses of girls eager to play football ganged at practice. At first, complications arose over who could play what position best. After a week of grueling contact, the coaches finally readied their teams for the 7:30 kick-off. Prior to the game, with last minute instructions given and equipment handed out, shouts sounded through the room including exclamations of "This helmet isn't big enough!" and "What am I suppose to do when I get out there?" For the first time in powderpuff history, the juniors and seniors battled to a 0-0 tie. With a few bruises and scrapes, sore, weary, and worn-out gridiron girls, content with the outcome of the game, gladly handed in their equipment and went home to get some well-earned rest.

Excitement builds in junior headquarters before receiving equipment.

The Royal "drop-out" band warms up while waiting for their half-time performance.

Absorbed in the game, Junior coaches Jim Folaros, Keith Collins, Max DeSosa and Ray Rawlings shout "Dump Eileen" on big defensive play.

Senior quarterback, Eileen England, discusses strategy with her team mates before the start of the game.

Quarterback Anita Minor screams out signals for juniors advancing into well guarded senior territory.

Scampering Elaine Cooper makes badly needed big yardage play for junior offense.

Determination spurs two new clubs

Disappointing news of no drama club found persistent students inclined to remedy the situation. Agreeing to sponsor the club, Mr. Astin offered them the opportunity needed to create a club. Students immediately accepted the responsibilities and quickly elected officers, paid dues, and ordered play books. In between character switches and script goofups the striving drama students produced a one act spring presentation.

As a different and thought provoking organization, the new Chess Club quickly acquired the skilled players of PG. Practice matches bettered them for the coming district tournament which turned out disastrous for opponents. A close victory over Virginia State College kept the club's winning record. By a complete domination of the chess board, Mike Lipp and Dan Tucker, two outstanding players gained an undefeated status.

Waiting for their cue, Cheryl McNeil, Becky Boldridge, and Jim Walk watch Debbie Robinson perform.

With Money piling in, Donna Bell racks up treasury dues.

Confused over new drama techniques, Martha Smith, Elaine Cooper, Kathy Chudoba and Becky Boldridge wait for stage directions.

While Mr. Allen watches, Kay Hill cautiously places her queen across the board to checkmate Rose Taylor. Along with Mr. Lesniak, great concentration engulfs Marty Walls as he probes for his next move.

Trying to learn the secrets of the game, Earl Thweatt looks on at chess match.

Long serious thought, a necessity in chess, clutches Lee Elledge during an afternoon practice.

PG bandsmen explore new Disney World

Between bumpy bus rides and band performances, the PG music makers slowed down for a stop to observe the make-believe world of Disney. Filing into the creeky door of the Haunted Mansion and lazily cruising on an old Mississippi Steamboat, Royal bandsmen invaded Disney World. Entertaining the other sightseers in the special Disney Christmas Parade, the band marched in 90° weather down Main Street U.S.A. with their tag-a-long fantasy friends. The band solved the heat problem they met in Florida by taking a cool refreshing dip in the hotel pool. Speculating the astronauts' world of Cape Kennedy furthered Royal musicians' knowledge of today's outerspace program. Touring Wings and Wheels Museum threw an educational air over the curious investigating PG band and marked an end to pleasure activities on the trip south.

John Duncan energetically carries luggage to buses on the morning of Miami take-off.

Mr. Gallop calls after breakfast conference, announcing the daily plans.

Trying December water on their own free will, swimmers warned, "don't throw me in!"

Chaperoned band members pause while deciding where to begin in Disney World.

Ty Braswell balances PA system on his head, making it possible for all to hear their instructions.

Royal musicians break for a winter picnic along with graduate bandmen.

Practicing long hours, band readies for Orange Bowl presentation.
Tensed up PG music makers release reserved energy at New Year's Eve party.
 Practice in a community churchyard polishes band's routine for upcoming orange Bowl Parade.
 Ty Braswell relates Mr. Mazza's suggestions to Royal musicians.
 Jodie Jordan takes a short breather on break from a long Florida practice.
 Majorettes round corner of Main Street, USA, in the special mid-day Disney World Christmas parade.

Practice makes perfect? This case proved true for the Prince George High School Marching Band on New Year's Eve. An invitation to the Orange Bowl Parade, Miami, Florida, motivated months of preparation, from selling candy kisses to practicing early Christmas Eve day, which readied the band for an outstanding performance in the parade.

Among thirteen other high school bands taunting their competition Prince George advanced the way to first place. Judges praise magnificent sound, excellent routine, and the colorful dress of the majorettes. Students and directors gleamed with happy contentment and longlasting relief the practice produced a "perfect" Orange Bowl showing.

Petersburg annexation splits Sophomore hearts

After long drawn out debates and heated arguments, Petersburg took custody of the unwilling suburban areas in Prince George County on January 1. As a result of the annexation, 176 sophomores and upcoming freshmen unhappily transferred their traditions and loyalty from PGHS to pack into Petersburg High School in the fall. The 102 juniors living in the annexed county breathed a sigh of relief when the PG School Board announced that they could remain to graduate from PG in 1973. Disappointed and angry sophomores complained, "It's not fair," "They can not make me change schools." The student body, with regrets, said farewell to sophomore friends and looked ahead to a questionable year.

After reading announcement of annexation, Sterling Hunt realizes the less crowded but less cheerful year ahead. Petersburg annexation cuts loyal King family, showing zoning miscalculation. Annexed Donna Snead beams from School Board news of letting juniors remain at Prince George for their last year. Down hearted sophomore Martha Smith suffers the consequences of living in an annexed area of the county. After only one year at PGHS, Jimmy McKnight, annexed sophomore, re-luctantly cleans out his locker for new year at Petersburg High School.

Trying to give the gym a special effect, Sandy Rawlings paints up paper to cover the bleachers.

Mrs. Lamb and Janet England finish the task of getting the stage back into shape.

Melvin Davis looks admiringly at his date, Carolyn Oakley, at the end of a perfect night.

Sharon Teufel, Yvonne Emerson and dates leave with snatched signs.

Juniors produce memories

Weeks prior to the Ring Dance, plans began for the class of 1973's first major junior responsibility. Appointed chairmen and committees labored long, tedious hours at school. Decorations filled the gym from a conglomeration of well thought out ideas. On February 12, strains of popular music echoed throughout the gym as couples danced and spoke above the magnitude of the music. Anticipation mounted every moment as each person listened for the calling of his name to come forward and receive his ring. At last, the final student slipped on his treasure, and the Ring Dance embedded a blissful memory in the minds of everyone.

CLASSES

Susan Hawks watches Claudia Duck and Terry Shuklus hang homemade geometric ornaments on individual Christmas tree limbs during third period geometry class. Checking for costly mistakes, Cindy Payne and Donna Bishop proofread Typing II manuscript before turning it in for six weeks grade.

In between trouble-making jabber, John Hudgins, Dwight Thompson, and Bill Claiborne scratch down reading assignment in the library.

Resealing the rusted handle, Glenn Underwood melts new metal around trash can edge.

Rippling currents of insecurity battered a young flame causing it to quiver with uncertainty. Overwhelming responsibilities stifled the flame nearly smothering all self-confidence. Out from reassurance and strengthened ability rose the weak flame to a wavering torch blazing red-hot.

Flashing personalities stimulate unity

Class of '72 bounces to Charlottesville

An early Class meeting set the roaring class of '72 off to a hard working but fun-filled year. Class President Terry Dennis kept students informed on senior dues and details on the rough and tough powder puff game held on November 23. On four rickety school buses, the seniors traveled to Charlottesville for the UVA-UNC football encounter. Senior Week jokes boosted lasting closeness for seniors to recall in the unpredictable, challenging future.

Standing at attention, Sherryl Keys awaits signal to begin show. Searching through endless name cards, Lennis Fludd hunts for student's schedule. Herff Jones representative jots down numbers for Senior graduation orders.

Finances cram seniors hours

Determination and willing spunk showed through as seniors headed clubs and school activities. Lending a helping hand, upperclassmen drew final drafts and typed newspaper articles to meet last-minute deadlines. Maggie Wingfield, French Club president and head chef, set a foreign air by cooking up a stylish French meal. In a frenzy over money-raising deals, clubs squeezed in car washes, candy sales, brunswick stews and tiny boutiques.

Reinhart Reiss flags down business for Beta Club car wash.

Eileen England slaves over baseball layout to meet November deadline.

Grads jump gun, stuff faces

Playful moans and groans floated through the air and envious underclassmen's eyes gleamed from classroom doors while seniors scuttled by two minutes before lunch bells. Sophs and juniors pushed and shoved in the lunch lines as already fed and seated upperclassmen laughingly remembered the good old days. Soapy bubbles filled with senior hot air glided dreamily over food tables and popped, drenching the early lunchtime gossipers.

Mike Crocker watches scatter-brained seniors blow bubbles during lunch. A. W. Adams and Phil Bowers beat underclassmen to lunch two minutes early.

Seniors bog down to work load

The '72 seniors chose from a variety of subjects to load up their day. Many took advanced biology, where they had the pleasure of dissecting cats. After completing the dissection, the class held their traditional funeral for the cats and buried them near the side of the football field. Between laughs and slap-happy comments, the government classes duplicated a mock Congress in action. In English class, mandatory critical analyses gave wide-range interpretations that Shakespeare would have never possibly imagined.

Senior brains ace Merit tests

National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests, taken last February, flaborgasted the Class of '72 when Janet Schultz, Jeannie Tricebock, and Walter Seal took three semi-finalist awards. Terry Dennis and Lennis Fludd racked their brains and surprisingly won the outstanding Negro award. The ability to reason and eligibility for scholarships caused slap-happy students to throw their brain work on paper. Linda Parker, Claire Rott, Kevin Cummings, and Larry Wright scored high and received letters of commendation. Numerous college choices eased minds for future.

Semi-finalists Janet Schultz, Lennis Fludd, Jeannie Tricebock, and Terry Dennis puzzle over advanced English assignment.

Senior heads pull big-time positions

The Class of '72 elected Terry Dennis, President, Bill Beachy, Vice-President, Mary McLean, Secretary, and Randall Reiss, Treasurer. On September 13, the new officers spoke of the senior privileges and the senior trip. Their privilege to leave class two minutes early for lunch received silly smirks from underclassmen.

Surprised Terry Dennis climbs down bleachers to order graduation announcements and thank you notes. During the first Senior meeting Mr. George clears up questions concerning early class dismissals.

Mary McLean snatches PG Homecoming crown

A sudden hush fell over the audience as onlookers shifted their attention to the football field. This year's senior Homecoming representatives included Mary McLean, Debbie Robinson, and Balette Whatley, all previously elected as finalists. As the band softly harmonized "Close to You," the three girls took their places in front of the decorative float. A scream of joy, applause from the crowd, and a thunder of fireworks simultaneously sounded as Mary McLean accepted the crown as symbol of her third consecutive year on the Court.

Toombs-Wade combo carry PG

Ten members of the Senior Class made up the 1971 varsity football team. Led by the dynamic passing of Jim Toombs into the hands of Ronnie Wade, the PG Royals showed proof of one of the top combinations in the district. Defensively, linebacker Michael Mayton led the team with the highest number of tackles followed by Dwight Thompson. Jim Taylor, sidelined for injuries in the opening game, was limited only to duties on defense until the mid-season. In the game with Colonial Heights, Taylor led the team with nine tackles and four assists.

Tailback James Taylor carries the ball into General territory after picking up vital yardage. Dwight Thompson and Jimmy Toombs meet head official Stephens at mid-field for the coin-tossing prior to opening kick-off against Dinwiddie.

Proofs sway Senior decisions

Seniors Paul Thomas, Doug Ramsey, Tommy Mizelle, and Roy McBride exchange last-minute glances before pictures. 98 . . . 99 . . . 100 counts Joe Waldron as he combs his hair for Senior Portrait.

October 3 marked another milestone for the Senior Class. Photographer Lynn Phillips, snapped 288 seniors portraits featuring two attractive poses for a one dollar sitting fee. In late October homeroom teachers frantically distributed proofs to anxious seniors. Mixed emotions and an atmosphere of indecision hampered the Class of '72 in selecting the appropriate pose for family and friends alike.

Cheerleaders invent new victory chants

Whether shouting a new cheer or yelling familiar chants, PG cheerleaders did their best to promote school spirit among the students. Senior cheerleaders Cheryl McNeil, Mary McLean, and Debbie Lesniak experienced their first year as varsity cheerleaders. Although underclassmen dominated the squad, the spirit of these three girls led the Class of '72 to victory in nearly all of the class competition cheers.

"Hold Em!" screams Debbie Lesniak as the Trojans near the 10-yard line. Yelling the "Royal Battle Cry," Ty Braswell leads seniors in class competition for the spirit stick.

Seniors rule running contests

A transfer, a strong man, a reliable athlete and an unbeatable speed demon classified the '71 track team senior standouts who dared to pit their abilities against others. Moving in from New York, Nate Hines surprised everyone with his fleetness of foot, finishing second in team scoring. Rick Lowder, high on grit and determination, demonstrated that reliability and dedication to a job could win over natural ability. Andre Holmes, fastest on the team, showed himself as the main stay of the mile-relay event, whether stretching the lead or overtaking an opponent. Dwight Thompson with muscles of iron hurled himself alongside his shotput through the regionals on to state competition, dominating his event wherever he traced. The 2-5 team record failed to hinder the boiling excitement that penetrated all seven meets.

Dazed seniors whirled in circles facing money problems. Feeling qualified better as banks rather than humans, upperclassmen paid final sitting fees and announcement costs in the week of November 3. # Juniors stage war trials

Stories of summer episodes and questionable thoughts floated over the packed auditorium as the Class of '73 entered their second year at PG. Juniors enrolled in American History classes relived witch trials, massacres, and the signing of peace treaties. Ring dance decorators dangled from wobbly ladders while trying to disguise the Green Machine Mini Gym. Spirit-rising midclassmen turned the room into another world as Juniors accepted multi-colored and designed '73 rings.

On the morning of October 19, approximately 75 junior boys and girls filed into Rooms 220 and 222 to be administered the Preliminary National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Pencils sharpened and hopefully their minds also, the juniors endeavored to qualify among the national rating of semi-finalists. Having scored exceptionally well on these tests, many of the students had a better chance of being accepted by a college. Many loud sighs of relief resounded throughout the rooms as the tests ended. The familiar sounds of "Wasn't that hard!" and "Thank goodness it is over!" faded as the tired students left the room to go to other classes.

Junior gridiron players shape Green Machine

Eleven rugged juniors contributed their respective talents to the 1971 Royal football team. Jimmy Folaros starred at halfback on the high scoring offensive team, while Jimmy Sulc exhibited his prowess on offense and defense. Three returnees from last year's fine team, Keith Collins, Ray Rawlings, and Roger Vlk, won starting positions as did Kansas transfer, Max DeSosa. As valued substitutes, Steve Ellis, Ricky Kitchen, Russ Smelley, Keith Stanley, and Kenny Underwood showed great drive and determination throughout the season.

Tension increased as the Homecoming Court candidates for 1971 filed down the steps and on to the field. The junior class, proudly represented by Brenda Burke, Iris Lieber and Sandy Rawlings, anxiously awaited the announcement of the junior attendant. As that final moment approached, the winner, announced by Mr. Ross, proudly came forward. The enthusiastic, school spirited Sandy Rawlings accepted her title with a smile on her face and the hope of opportunities for the new year twinkling in her eyes.

On October 7, the Herff-Jones representatives, Reed Schweickart and Tom Davis, brought refined examples of the colors, stone cuts, and style of the 1973 class rings. Juniors, full of questions and decisions, filled out their orders for their rings. Cries of "Should I get a PG or my own initials; a cut stone or smooth top?" filtered throughout the gym. Within the mass of confusion of taking finger sizes and scribbling last minute changes, the excited juniors finally placed their orders. Juniors joyfully received their anxiously awaited rings during February of 1972 at their annual dance.

Class of '73 rallies in pep contest.

The fiery spirit of PG Royals, shown in their strong support of a pep-chain, grew even more intense as the 1971 Homecoming night drew near. Each link of the chain cost a penny and on every strip Royals wrote phrases of their choice. A challenge to see which class could contribute the most to the chain put all students to the test. The spirited juniors won the competition and received suckers as their due reward from the cheerleaders. Everyone anxiously awaited Homecoming night. Cheerleaders grasped the green, gold, and white chain as the PG football players proudly charged through, ready to face the Dinwiddie Generals. Urging their team on, enthusiastic Royal supporters cheered from the stands as well as from the human pep chain that formed on field.

Royal supporters screamed wildly as the Green Machine blasted through the human pep line on the field. Grabbing the megaphone, head cheerleader Doris Elder chants "Beat the Generals" in Dinwiddie duel.

Sophomores pack PG halls

With high ambitions, the Sophomore Class, sponsored by Mr. Tom Lesniak, elected the four class officers. Mr. Lesniak organized the confused officers into a conglomeration of coordinated ideas and able, willing bodies. Pushing to be recognized, the Class of '74 scrambled together enough drive and determination to light the fuse that exploded into a world of new and unfeatable things for sophomores.

Linda Antenucci astounds PG crowd

During the crisp, clear night of October 8, the stadium filled with suspense and loads of excitement as Linda Antenucci, Shirley Oakley, and Laura Vtipil ushered by their escorts walked onto the football field at halftime of the Prince George-Dinwiddie hassle. The band played "Close to You," the love theme "Romeo and Juliet," and "Monday, Monday" for the halftime activities. The crowd with bated breath gasped as Linda Antenucci accepted the Sophomore title unexpectedly.

Bubbling personalities, true sincerity, and "arm-leg" coordination centered the four teachers' attention around 12 spirited girls. Sore muscled Barbara Boisseau and Debbie Cavanaugh practiced arduously to gain the two alternate positions on the cheerleading squad. The transfer of "Weasel" DeWeese emptied a space in the line-up, hoisting Barbara Boisseau to a regular position. Alternate Debbie Cavanaugh aroused the crowds' spirit leading the Green Machine to a Homecoming victory against Dinwiddie. Lively cheers and vivacious girls raised sophomores' spirit during afternoon pep rallies and turbulent Friday football hassles.

Sophomores spoon jumbled vegetables into stew pot

Saturday morning, October 30, the drowsy members of the annual staff had to rise and shine for a long day of hard work. Sleepy-eyed members stirred in bushels of corn, beans, carrots, loads of potatoes, and pounds of chicken. Throughout the day sophomores supplied moral support and occasionally gave the stew a strong, generous "swish." The afternoon of delivery found many of the junior and senior staff members as chauffeurs while the sophomores did the leg work delivering.

Gwen Moore, lead Princette, and Laura Vtipil, Starlette, represented the Sophomore class in the majorette squad. The new all sequin uniforms, purchased to wear in the Orange Bowl Parade in Florida, added an extra attraction this year. At every performance, the majorettes surprised an attentive audience in a sparkling array of brilliant uniforms. Cowgirls, sequin skirted Starlettes, Princettes in dangling fringe, or performers in shimmering gold and silver metallic uniforms dazzled excited on-lookers.

Smiling faces and perfect timings erupted into individual achievements and Gwen and Laura expressed their initiative to be a prominent part of these performances. The Starlettes appeared different from the Princettes but only in the color of their uniform. Practice for every performance is held to perfect everything down to the most minute detail. Working hard to perfect every routine and spending long hours in practice, the majorettes added sparkling highlights and livened up every Royal band performance.

Sophs kick, block, run

Stubborn determination and rigorous work led the sophomore football players to progress steadily into a new season. Tension built before every game increased Mark Smelley's apprehension of his kicking duty. Chris Sloan, with defensive and offensive duties, contributed strength to the squad. Injured Ray Rawlings compelled Coach Woodby to focus his attention on Darrell Bullock. Plowing through the defensive lines, Bullock added depth to the backfield. The biggest asset from last year's JV squad came in the form of the 165 pound guard, Percy Mason. The sophomore dominated bench eagerly cheered on the thundering Green Machine.

Kilbourne resigns; Lilley takes top spot

Questions bombarded the school board office with chaos and confusion when the Petersburg annexation upset the PG school system. Boundary lines switched on December 31 placed loyal school fans in a city division. The first student-parent boundary committee met with Dr. Rooks and settled a squabbling dispute about where the Prince George County money disappeared. Buying new films, replacing ancient clerical equipment and helping underprivileged students buy books swallowed up a large portion of the PG bank account. Redistricting reduced the board number from 5 to 4, giving the reappointing board a tougher job in selecting the problem-solving team. Living in the annexed area, Dr. James Kilbourne, former chairman, requested that he not be reappointed causing a new mix-up in selections. Mr. Lilley filled the spot as chairman and Mr. Vargo glided up to the second highest position, elevating them with a louder voice.

Mr. Alexander questions Dr. Rooks in connection with the resignation of supervisor Dr. James Kilbourne. The student school board committee laughs with Dr. Rooks over an amusing suggestion for the use of county money. From his car radio, Mr. Richmond Zehmer relays a busing change to the bus shop before leaving the School Board Office. Mrs. Thomas punches payroll computer keys for last minute faculty checks. Following interviews for board seats, Mrs. Harrison, Dr. Rooks, Mr. Clements, Mr. Vargo, and newly-elected chairman, Mr. Lilley, relieve tension through a relaxing, informal chat.

MR. BURTON F. ALEXANDER, JR. University of Virginia, B.S., M.Ed.; Director of Instruction.

DR. JAMES E. ROOKS University of Tennessee, B.S., M.S., University of Virginia, D.Ed.; Superintendent of Schools.

MR. RICHMOND T. ZEHMER, JR. Virginia Polytechnic Institute, B.S.; Director of Transportation.

MRS. VIRGINIA THOMAS Richmond Business College, School Board Clerk.

ADMINISTRATION

For change of pace, Mr. George tries his talents as waiter at faculty party. Finding no time to break for coffee, Mr. George inspects his dissertation with a hopeful eye of approval. Closing up shop, Mr. Thomas locks problems behind office door. "A, B, C, D . . ." recites Mr. Rockwell as he searches through student files.

MR. THOMAS GEORGE East Carolina University, B.A., College of William and Mary, M.Ed., Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study in Educational Administration, University of Florida, Ph.D.; Principal.

MR. EDWARD ROCKWELL West Virginia University, B.S., M.A., College of William and Mary, Virginia Commonwealth University; Assistant Principal; Director of Activities.

MR. CHARLES THOMAS Randolph Macon College, B.A., B.S., University of Pittsburg, M.Ed., College of William and Mary, Randolph Macon Woman's College, Richmond Professional Institute, University of Virginia, Virginia Commonwealth University; Assistant Principal.

Establishment communicates

Cooperation from both student body and the establishment shortened the problem list. The three men struggled to keep the school organized throughout the day. Mr. Thomas George, principal of PG for four years, completed four months of college at the University of Florida, receiving his doctorate in Educational Administration. During Mr. George's absence from the "high seat" in the school, Mr. Ed Rockwell, assistant principal, took over the busy position of principal. Completing his fifth year at PG, Mr. Rockwell has served as athletic director for two years and kept records of tardies and other miscellaneous jobs that involved the students. Mr. Charles Thomas' voice boomed each day throughout the school over the "squawk box." Occupying the assistant principal post for four years, Mr. Thomas headed the Chemistry Department 13 years before sliding up to the administrative position.

Secretaries, counselors tackle job

Administrative secretaries, Mrs. Bernadine Anderson and Mrs. Nancy Wells, carried out vital duties in school operation. The days in the office included long hour concentration on straightening money, balance books, and letter writing. Mrs. Wells pondered over the tiresome job of bookkeeping and kept charge of money circulation. Along with typing the long lists of early dismissals and absences, Mrs. Bernadine Anderson controlled in and out main office traffic. Making coffee and catching up on the school gossip eased hectic tension.

The Guidance Office worked long and hard, solving student problems. Mrs. Mary Gill, senior counselor, informed the seniors about college boards and plans for the future. Mrs. Linda Iselin spent hours in her tiny office as a listening post for juniors and sophomores. Mrs. Connie Cooper, the workhorse of the guidance office, handled most of the complicated paper work. Fifteen students aided the guidance office by running errands.

Before making replica of important contract, Mrs. Nancy Wells straightens paper in duplicating machine. Mrs. Bernadine Anderson scrambles through file catalog for student address. Mrs. Mary Gill chats with college administrators about students wish- ing to enter in the fall.

Thumping her pencil, Mrs. Linda Iselin ponders over advice for student. Mrs. Melvin, Mike Turek, and Mrs. Cooper do not take seriously Bill Hayes urgency to get one of the last footballs.

MRS. NANCY WELLS Office Secretary, Bookkeeper.

MRS. BERNADINE ANDERSON Office Secretary.

MRS. MARY GILL College of William and Mary, A.B., University of Virginia, M.Ed.,

Medical College of Virginia; Guidance Director.

MRS. LINDA ISELIN Longwood College, B.A., University of Virginia, M.Ed.; Counselor.

MRS. CONNIE COOPER Guidance Secretary.

Seniors acquaint themselves with Shakespeare

Seniors kept with tradition in the annual writing of term papers. After six weeks of reading Shakespeare, they set out to prove a thesis in their critical analyses of Shakespeare. They chose between six plays — two tragedies, two comedies, or two histories. The advanced classes experimented with creative writing, originating one character and making up an imaginary conversation. Studying Shakespearean plays, they familiarized themselves with the archaic old English language.

Due to lack of cooperation from students, Mrs. Swineford cleans tables before homeroom.

After hours of hard work, Mark Landreth and John Hudgins hand in their critical analyses to Mrs. Carwile. Senior sponsor, Miss Vick, smiles amusingly at powderpuff game action.

MRS. RUTH SWINEFORD Longwood College, B.A., Atlantic Christian College; English 12, Department Head; National Honor Society.

MRS. KAY CARWILE College of William and Mary, A.B.; English 12; Literary Magazine.

MISS CAROL VICK Longwood College, B.A., University of Virginia, M.Ed.; English 12; Senior Class.

MRS. CYNTHIA MERRIX Virginia Commonwealth University, B.A.; English II; Newspaper.
MRS. MARJORIE CRICHTON Montreat College, B.A., Longwood College, College of William and Mary, University of Virginia; English II, French II; Beta Club.
MRS. JUNE HILL Virginia State College, B.S., Richard Bland College, Virginia Commonwealth University; English II.

High Juniors support Etcetera

Incoming juniors, relieved at not having to take grammar, studied American authors and read several great classics; Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter and John Knowles' A Separate Peace. Early in the year, advanced students showed their ability at teaching and leading a class discussion while they studied Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Herman Melville, and James Russell Lowell. Many students experienced firsts at writing critical analyses on a selection of their choice by James Fenimore Cooper in the advanced classes while the regular classes wrote the traditional book reports. The advanced classes also turned in one prose and one poetry selection for the literary magazine, a requirement of advanced students.

ENGLISH, LIBRARY Classes crash library

Sophomores alternated between grammar and literature each six weeks. They heard promises of "this is the last year you will study grammar until you enter college." Many students tried their hand at acting when their class performed the play The Miracle Worker. Some of the classes familiarized themselves with the library with the help of Miss Pittman, who presented slides on using the card index files and the number system for locating a book. As in the past, students stuck to the routine of writing book reports of selected books.

Mrs. Breeding listens keenly to Rick Alford's question.

Mr. Lesniak goes over aspects of the previous period while Charlie Swineford points out faults to Robert Wood.

Moving around every period, half English-half History teacher Mrs. Rusnak packs up at the end of her U.S. History class.

Mr. Astin uses a little time to work on his lesson plan.

Miss Pittman takes time off from pa- troling the library to answer Mrs. Breeding's question.

Mrs. Melvin fills ditto with long list of overdue books.

MRS. SUZANNE BREEDING Concord College, B.S., Radford College; English 10.

MR. THOMAS LESNIAK Emory and Henry, B.A., Richard Bland College, Davis and Elkins College, University of Virginia, Virginia State College; English 10; Wrestling, Sophomore Class, Co-Sponsor Monogram Club.

MRS. ELLEN RUSNAK East Carolina University, B.S.; English 10, U.S. History.

MR. IRA ASTIN Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, B.S., Virginia Commonwealth University, Virginia State College; English 10; Drama Club.

MISS CAROLYN PITTMAN Madison College, B.S., College of William and Mary; Librarian; Library Club.

MRS. JEAN MELVIN Madison College; Secretary of the Bookstore and Library.

Chudoba grabs top spot in Democracy contest

The History Department experienced a loss at the beginning of the first semester as Mr. Garfield C. Walker left to take a position in the U.S. Department of Archives in Washington, D.C. Mr. Floyd M. Washabaugh, a Vietnam veteran and a graduate of VCU, took over his boisterous classes:

During the first semester, Miss Preston's advanced history classes struggled through their required Voice of Democracy speeches. Assigned in November and given during December, most of the speeches displayed an interest in their country. On the morning of December 16, Mr. Thomas announced the winner, Kathy Chudoba, runner-up, Janet Schultz, and third place, Mike Duncan.

Speaker of the House, Bruce Harmata, motions for approval of Foreign Aid Program during the fifth period mock Congress.

Miss Preston irritates her fifth period while grasping her podium for support.

In his office, Mr. Jones relaxes while skimming through the latest issue of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Mr. Washabaugh, his class bored with South American geography, points out tributaries of the Amazon River.

MISS LOUISE THORNTON College of William and Mary, A.B., M.Ed.; U.S. History, U.S. Government; Pep Club.

MISS ELIZABETH PRESTON Radford College B.S., Virginia State College, College of William and Mary; U.S. History; Future Teachers of America.

MR. ROGER JONES Lynchburg College, B.A., College of William and Mary; U.S. History and Government; Department Head.

MR. FLOYD WASHABAUGH Virginia Commonwealth University B.S.; World History, World Geography.

Terry Price testifies during the case of American Farmers vs. English Creditors while Kathy Chudoba and Marianne MacGregor wait for cross-examination. Mr. Matheny sneaks up on Cliff Keesler scribbling last night's homework.

Mrs. Lamb patiently explains Article I of the Bill of Rights to Ernest Williams. Taking advantage of second period study hall, Miss Thornton makes plans for her next Government class.

Mr. Wells reluctantly tunes in ETV program during first period Government class.

MR. GALE MATHENY University of Virginia, Old Dominion University B.A., M.A., University of Richmond; U.S. History, World History; Golf.

MRS. JOY LAMB University of South Carolina A.B., College of William and Mary; U.S. History; Junior Class.

MR. WALTER WELLS East Carolina University B.A., Virginia Commonwealth University, College of William and Mary; United States Government; Track Coach.

Senior Scholastic magazines, distributed weekly, provided information on current events to history students. Advanced history classes dreaded second semester as thoughts of subjects for term papers filled their minds. Miss Thornton's government classes concentrated on different phases of government. On November 8, her classes enacted a mock Congress. Mr. Wells' class performed as the Senate, while Miss Thornton's class acted as the House of Representatives.

Amateur scientists break in text

Bubbles fizzed over test tube sides and the thump of balances in use found confused PG students in their first year of lab. Everyone poured into class eager to explore the world of chemistry. Teachers found students ready to learn and accept responsibilities of working in the lab as well as the classroom. Lab required precise measurement, careful use of all equipment, and knowledge of subject matter. The amateur chemists found chemistry an exciting field of study. The department experienced change with the transfer of Mr. Holsinger from biology. A new program that enabled freshmen at the junior high to take a higher level of science produced an overflow of students taking chemistry.

An interest in aircraft encouraged many students to take Aerospace. Students learned the importance of weather conditions and the many other factors involved in flying planes. A trip to Langley Air Force Base added a most welcome change from the everyday classroom routine.

Mr. Holsinger patiently explains how to use the slide rule to Jim Lester. Students hopelessly trudge through one of Mr. Holsinger's tough tests.

A glass Christmas tree? Kathy Swift adds the final touches to the chemistry classes' Christmas project. Throwing attention towards the blazing blue flame, students concentrate on bunsen burner techniques.

MR. JERRY HOLSINGER Bridgewater College, B.A., Virginia State College, University of Virginia, Madison College, University of Richmond; Chemistry.

MRS. ARLENE BARBER University of North Carolina, A.B., Medical College of Virginia, B.S., College of William and Mary, University of North Carolina, Virginia Commonwealth University; Chemistry; Para-Medical Club.

Mr. Broady hastily catches up on last minute details before next class. Competing against the bell, Mrs. Turner returns terrifying test papers to fifth period Aerospace class. Aerospace students view model space capsule during field trip to Langley Air Force Base.

Mr. Pittman scrutinizes Terry Dennis' and Pat Albert's microscope techniques. Creating a cheerful bulletin board, Mrs. Taylor traces stencils on blue and orange construction paper.

MR. DAVID BROADY Virginia State College, M.S.; Biology, Chemistry.

MRS. JANE TURNER St. Joseph College, Longwood College, B.S., Virginia Commonwealth University; Aerospace.

MR. LAWRENCE PITTMAN University of North Carolina, A.B., East Carolina University, M.A., North Carolina University, College of William and Mary, Randolph Macon College; Biology, Department Head.

MRS. ANNE TAYLOR Longwood College, B.S. Virginia Commonwealth University, College of William and Mary; Biology.

Biology classes probe nature

The study of living things offered a new perspective for many biology students. Tramping through the woods, they tried to find specimens before the fall season approached and the leaves withered and fell to the ground. Leaf collections furthered their knowledge in their own surroundings. Dissection added an important part to the course. Much to the distress of many parents, reluctant students carried frogs home. They worked hard boiling the frogs in preparation for their mounting and labeling. Changes in the department added biology to Mr. Broady's teaching load. The adoption of new textbooks made old editions obsolete. Last year's notebooks as well as teachers' lesson plans had no use for the scientific minds except as a source of reference.

MATH
*Math-minded
'Myrtle Brown'
joins students*

Jumbled numbers and mathematical equations bewildered non-math thinkers. Advanced Math students furthered their mathematical minds by applying previously learned knowledge. Algebra I and geometry classes progressed in their studies which would aid them in future years. Mr. Rex MacBarnes' calculus classes created an imaginary person named "Myrtle Brown." They wanted to see how far the project would go before anyone discovered their secret. Through mathematical formulas she achieved honorable mention. For her outstanding ability, the local newspaper listed Myrtle as an academic PG student. Algebra II classes worked together in decorating Christmas tree by making ornaments out of geometric figures. Math students faced many confusing situations, but by study hours they solved their problem.

Regular announcer Mr. Allen tries to keep warm while reporting the plays of the PG vs. Meadowbrook game.

Bewildered Miss Southhall and Kendall Bzdek debate on where to add the missing link of the ornament.

Mr. Darby keeps one eye on the students during lunch duty while reviewing his problems for the next class.

Covering the tree with ornaments, Kendall Bzdek and Sherry Herald hang dangling geometric figures on the top limbs.

Stunned by the bang of the ball, Mr. MacBarnes demonstrates the gravitational attraction of the sphere to Thomas Long and James McDonough.

MR. JOHN ALLEN Virginia Union University, B.A., Virginia State College, M.Ed.; Math 9, Algebra I, Geometry; Chess Club.

MISS BARBARA SOUTHALL Westhampton College, B.S., University of Richmond, M.S.Ed.; Algebra I, Fused Geometry, Algebra II and Trigonometry.

MR. REX MacBARNES Coe College, B.A., Virginia State College, B.S., University of Arizona, Virginia State College, Lehigh University; Calculus, Physics, Advanced Math, Algebra I, Department Head.

MR. LEON DARBY Florence State University, B.S., Tennessee Technological University, M.S., University of Maryland; Algebra II, Geometry.

Hoping to be bypassed, Iris Lieber

Mrs. Rusmisell frowns after reading fourth year French gourmet menu.
Rushing to finish before the bell, Miss Scott scribbles down lesson plan for next period German class.

MRS. GRETA COLLINS College of William and Mary, A.B.; Spanish, Physical Education; Yearbook.

MRS. BARBARA KERKHOFF Mary Washington College, B.A., Virginia Commonwealth University; Spanish; Spanish Club.

MRS. ANNE RUSMISELL Mary Washington College,
B.A.; University of Virginia M.A.T.,
French; French Club, French Honor Society.

MISS KATHRYN SCOTT Longwood College, B.A.; German; German Club.

ALM tests vanish from third year classes

Capturing inquisitive minds, the novelty of a new language led students to the Foreign Language Department. Throughout the halls, "Hello, how are you?" in French, German, and Spanish from first year linguists impressed their bilingual teachers. Second year scholars found that unwelcomed ALM tests still existed, getting more difficult with each lesson. The upper level classes filled the fourth period timeslot, making it impossible for interested students to continue in more than just one language. Crowded conditions in the school pushed classes into non-language classrooms. A French class downstairs and a Spanish class down the hall from the regular foreign language rooms created a distance problem for audio-visual equipment. Once a week trips to the lab for those not in lab equipped rooms added amusement to classroom activities, and gripes of "They speak too fast!" filtered through the air of classrooms 221 and 223.

Tiny Mrs. Ronning winds the clock for a speed timing before giving students the go ahead to begin in Typing I.
Miss Tillery clears up confusing Phase II Wage Price Freeze during Economics lecture.
Mr. Keith Lowe, insurance representative briefs Mrs. Moody on Business Law lecture about different insurance policies.

Donna Bishop jots down notes as Miss Martin dictates during Shorthand.
Cheerful Mrs. Flowers and Carolyn Coleman tackle messy chore of cleaning the typewriter in her Typing II class.
MRS. VALARIE RONNING Longwood College, B.S.; Typing I, Economics; Future Business Leaders of America.

MISS SUNATA TILLERY Norfolk State College B.S.; Virginia State College, M.Ed.; Typing I, Economics.

MRS. INELL MOODY Virginia State College, B.A., M.S.; Bookkeeping, Business Law.

MISS RUTH MARTIN Madison College, B.S.; Typing II, Shorthand II, Bookkeeping Clerical Practice: SCA.

MRS. STUART FLOWERS Longwood College Virginia Commonwealth University, B.S.; Typing II.

BUSINESS

Diction + Shorthand = Speed

Students' racing fingers speedily hit the keys in Typing I and II to pass daily time writings. For the first year PG juniors and seniors taking Typing II kept notebooks on each office manual chapter for reference. Shorthand I and II students recognized symbols as an easier way of writing, while to others they remained meaningless. In Secretarial and Clerical Practice, correct office procedures for using the telephone and switchboard presented valuable experience to students. Studying the Federal Reserve System and drawing a map of the United States kept pupils busy in Economics. A course in Business Law proved beneficial for would be graduates planning law careers.

DE, VOT members storm available job openings

Students hoping to gain experience and skills in office work enrolled in Vocational Office Training. All fifteen girls participating in the program held well earned jobs. At the beginning of the school year, VOT members conducted mock interviews in which they came dressed for application. Besides training in office procedures, they learned how to operate machines used in business situations. An Employer-Employee banquet, given every spring, set up a better working relationship between the bosses and the students. Selling candles during the school year not only raised money, but it gave VOT classes valuable exercise and practice in salesmanship.

On the job training in retailing, buying, and selling techniques gave Distributive Education students background for future work in the business world. Between school and jobs, DECA members concentrated on their incoming pay checks. In the preceding months before Christmas, classes sponsored a door decorating contest as well as selling Christmas decorations. During each football game, DECA members sold programs and boosters to promote school spirit. Competing in state and district meets generated initiative to work harder in representing their school.

Filling out Federal reserve cards stimulates a discussion between Trudy Hutzell and Mrs. Trant in homeroom. Having the privilege of an office phone, Mrs. Hedgepeth takes down notes in the DE-VOT office.

Momentarily stunned as the camera flashes, Mrs. Westerhouse struggles back to teacher's lunch table for turkey dinner. Perched on her pedestal, Mrs. Dowdy strays from DE routine, slipping in wisecrack. Racing to finish before the bell, Sandi Lowery questions Mrs. Schultz about complicated percentage problems in General Business.

MR. BILL WOODBY Maryville College, B.S., University of Tennessee, M.S.; Driver Education; Head Football, Assistant Track.

Driver training sharpens reactions

Panicky students haphazardly dressed, only to face aching bones, sore muscles, and breathlessness. Physical fitness, two times a week, made the hassle over the gym seem unimportant. Because of the minimized space in the gym and classroom, PE teachers reached a mutual agreement on the Friday use of the gym. Both girls' and boys' classes dressed out rather than squeeze into the overcrowded room.

Driver Education cars rolled up in front of school every morning at 9:15 and stayed on the county roads until 3:30. Sophomores, as well as juniors and seniors, slipped under the wheels of the 1972 cars furnished by Randolph Motors of Hopewell. Coach Collins, Woodby, Smith, Swineford, and Mrs. Allin coached nervous prospects harnessed in seat and shoulder belts. Sportsmanlike driving on the highway and a mere desire to conquer the skill guaranteed for many eager individuals the driver education license certificates.

Skills beam through Shop classes

Wooden blocks chipped away by shop workers concluded into carved gun racks, coffee tables, and book cases. Sawdust piled high under sanding machines, scattered endlessly on hair and clothes. Sparks flew across anvils while masked metal shop students concocted welding projects. A sudden explosion sent water gushing over working equipment in the fourth period shop class on December 7 when sewer lines blocked up the water system. The maintenance crew rushed to the rescue and swept gallons of water from the flooded floors. Shutting down all water facilities set the whole school into commotion as students stood guard for no entrances at restroom doors.

Music highlights winter assembly; PG includes Common Learning

Under the new direction of Mrs. Horne, the choir soared into action. Mrs. Horne added originality to her classes. As a concert group, the musically toned students presented a program at the Holiday Inn for the PGEA convention, the Petersburg Walnut Mall, and the Christmas assembly with the band.

Mr. John Gallop and Mr. Ronald Cahoon, two new faces to the Band Department, came to PG to lighten the load of band director Mr. John V. Mazza. Band classes separated into different instrument sections and practiced timing and group tone. Mr. Cahoon helped design new field formations for football games and the trip to Miami, Florida.

PG added a new course to its curriculum this year. The Common Learning class, designed to aid those with slower learning habits, managed to find a room vacant to hold daily sessions. Mr. Peebles worked with 3-7 students per period dividing his time to give special attention to these individuals.

CHOIR, COMMON LEARNING

Mr. Mazza carefully restudies the band's itinerary for its Orange Bowl trip.
Mr. Gallop gets carried away with jazzed up version of an old favorite.

Five vivacious Longwood seniors squeezed through the halls of PG for the first time with fearful expressions. Upstairs, in rooms 201 and 204, two of the timid lassies familiarized themselves with Art and Home Economics Departments. Marianna Lilley, a resident of nearby Waverly, subbed for Mrs. Chairky as art students sketched imaginative impressions in the dark while Miss Lilley portrayed a Mexican hat dancer. Miss Jennifer Brown introduced the mod look to the Home Ec room and created livelier, more interesting sessions.

STUDENT TEACHERS

Dabbing with iridescent-color acrylics, Terry Shuklis and Marsha Hester cover canvases as Mrs. Chairky suggests lighter colors for abstract effect. After dictating Home Economics notes Mrs. Rice lets her girls complete their homework assignment in class. Miss Lilley, art student teacher, entertains her class with accordion music. Longwood supervisor comments on instructing weaknesses of student teacher faculty after one week on the job. Concerned parent consults student teacher Miss Brown and Mrs. Rice about his daughter's study habits.

MRS. MARCIA CHAIRKY Richmond Professional Institute. B.F.A.: Art, Department Head, Art Club.

Sloppy tables jam up loaded work schedule

The cafeteria crew began preparing for the school lunch year when Mrs. Cathrine Bendall and the staff trooped to the Virginia Food Service Association Convention. Returning with new and different ideas, the staff turned out more nutritious and improved lunches. Trash and trays left by inconsiderate students added extra work for the staff. Aided by the Art Club and SCA, the cafeteria bulletin boards and walls stayed decorated. Returning Mr. Janosko worked incessantly with added responsibilities. Marking off the football field, building the bonfire, and keeping PG in tip-top condition loaded down his schedule.

Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Crockett, Miss Horne, and Mrs. Bendall lightheartedly prepare a tasty meal for hungry Royals. Cafeteria crew shapes dough for rolls as Mrs. Janita Starke recounts number. Doing an undesirable but necessary job, Mr. Hanson Jones and Mrs. Lucy Fields stack and rinse dirty dishes. Mr. John Janosko kindles incinerator fire after mid-day lunch blocks. Miss Madge Horne throws herself into her work as she cleans a school oven.

SPORTS

erri Kaleyta displays her coordination in a fast moving figure-eight drill. Hoping for two point take down, Coach Lesniak and Charlie Swineford concentrate on Glen Ellis' techniques. He challenges the night as Anita Minor's blaze of school spirit threatens defeat for Hopewell. Jimmy Folaros points out Hopewell's weaknesses as Ray Rawlings and Jimmy Combs suggest possible goal defense.

Steadfast energy shot lightning across the sky turning the florescent blaze into a wildfire of light. Streaking flares cut through the air, stalking to overcome defeat but accepting unavoidable loss. Leaping and untamed, jumping flickers passed on its conquering spirit, burning away all indifference uncontrollably in its path.

Untamed spirit explodes into wildfire

Cheerleaders behead Monarchs

Jubilant in victory and encouraging in defeat, the varsity cheerleaders generated pep to keep the Royal spirit flying high. The ten girl squad, active during the summer with bake sales and car washes, found time to conjure up new cheers and chants. Slap-stick skits added new impact to routine pep rallies. Screaming "Behead the Monarchs," Royal supporters witnessed Judge Cheryl McNeil sentence Monty Monarch to beheadment in the "Here Come da Judge" skit. Whether portraying their spirit at games or pep rallies, varsity cheerleaders gave a lively boost to team morale.

CHEERLEADERS

"Make that point!" squeak the cheerleaders at the ten yard line.

With "Fight" precision cheer, Cheryl McNeil, Paula Minor, and Sandy Rawlings coax spirit during pep rally.

Judge Cheryl McNeil blasts out Monty Monarch's sentence at Meadowbrook pep rally skit.

Flocked by cheerleaders, Coach Smith unbundles programs for Friday morning sale.

Arousing the spirit of PG boosters, co-captain Iris Lieber shouts "Give me an R!"

Waiting for first period bell to ring,

Debbie Lesniak reads off last year's

Most Valuables to Sandy Rawlings and Cheryl McNeil.

The Royalettes found it difficult to hold the defense together during most of the '71 season. Six returning lettermen backed by the remaining new-comers did capture three decisive victories. Powerful pitching and defense enabled the Lady Royals to stop the Colonials for the first time in nearly eight years. Each team cracked their opponent's defense by scoring once in the fifth inning. The PG Royals pulled the game out in the top of the seventh inning with their second run of the game. With two men on base for the Lady Colonials, a spectacular throw by veteran maskman Sharon Kluth to rookie third-baseman, Patty Duhart retired the side ending the game. The jubilant Coach Allin, exclaimed that she had never seen the girls play so well.

Royal batsmen place third in Central District

Under the reigns of first year Royal Coach Wayne Collins, Prince George batsmen opened the season with back-to-back victories over Thomas Dale and Colonial Heights. Lefthander Alan Chudoba, doing the pitching against Dale, allowed only one hit and fanned 10 batters enroute to the win. In their next game against Manchester, the Royals suffered the first of their five losses of the season, 6-0. Due to one game being snowed out and several others called because of wet grounds, the Royals faced a heavily loaded schedule that on several occasions called for three games per week. Even with this tight schedule, PG still managed to win 11 games out of 16 starts, good for a third place finish in the Central District. One of the highlights and most exciting games of the '71 season came in defeating Hopewell, 4-3, at home. Prince George scored two runs in the bottom of the final inning with Jimmy Folaros singling home the clinching run to provide an upset over the Blue Devils.

Jim Folaros raps out a base-hit driving in the winning run in a come-from-behind victory over the Blue Devils. Eric Vlk turns in key play at third base to halt a possible Wave rally. ## Collins named Coach-of-the-Year

With an 11-5 mark, the Royals placed eight of their nine starters on All-Tri-City teams and followed that with one All-Central District selection, ace pitcher Alan Chudoba. Chudoba posted a 6-4 record on the season and gave up less than four hits per game. Showing much determination Coach Wayne Collins was selected Coach-of-the-Year by the Progress Index in his first season at the helm for the Royals. His installation of team spirit and good coaching antics brought PG the number three spot in the district.

Thompson places in regional

The PG cindermen improved over last year's winless season by establishing a 2-5 record. In their opening meet the Royals defeated Dinwiddie, 79½-51½. Nate Hines and Donald Perdue led the scoring by each taking three first places. In three consecutive outings, Prince George fell to defeat in the final events. Perdue, later chosen most valuable, collected the highest individual score for the season. Impressive shot-put and discus man Dwight Thompson, earned a berth to the regional meet after taking many firsts in district competition. At the regionals, Thompson placed fourth which qualified him for the state contest. Glen Gunderson, displaying an outstanding ability set a new PG record for the mile run. The freshman took first place in all but two district meets earning a seating in the regionals where he set a school record of 4:40.3.

Matheny steers linksmen

The 1971 Golf Team showed great improvement over the previous year's edition that had won only one match. The traditionally inexperienced team, coached by Gale Matheny, compiled a season record of 6-13-1. Although not a winning record, PG linksmen played high-class opponents as several close matches found defeat in last minute shots. The team, composed of mainly underclassmen, provided stiff competition in the district. Seniors Bob Melvin, Timmy Grimm, and Les Travers paced the Royals. Wayne Anderson took the honor of MVP, while Mark Penick won a divisional first place and secured the runner-up spot overall in the Fort Lee Junior Golf Driving Championship during the summer.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Coach Holdren faces rookie year

The Girls Basketball team underwent a heartbreaking season of winning only one game. Summer practices produced a minimum of enthusiastic girls. Miss Ruth Holdren, coaching for the first time, worked profusely every day after school trying to rouse team spirit. Many of the Royalties games began with a tremendous explosion of zest, but by the second half the fire had smoldered. Players and coach felt that lack of student and faculty support caused poor morale.

Taylor's injury shifts Hines into halfback slot

Hard hitting, a lot of hustle, and plenty of sweat keyed the Royal football team to a 4-5-1 record. The Royal gridmen, returning from an 8-2 season, came back with high spirits and showed they wanted to play ball. Their season opened with Highland Springs as the mighty Big Green brought home their first victory. James Taylor displayed his ability as a runner by carrying the ball 22 times for 128 yards. Leading the offense, Jimmy Toombs racked up 418 yards as quarterback in his first showing of the year. PG then traveled to meet the defending central regional champs, Douglas Freeman. At half time the Royals collected a 14-9 edge as Nate Hines, replacing the injured James Taylor, scored both TD's.

PG then witnessed its lead vanish as Freeman's Buzz Mintz plunged over from the four yard line to send the Royals back to PG with a dejecting 16-14 loss. Woodby's warriors next went to the road as they visited Manchester. Again Royals bowed to a 34-20 defeat, after a near upset in the fourth quarter of the Lancers, dominated by a huge defense.

On an option play, Nate Hines bursts for ten yards before exploding into Hopewell defender during annual clash.

Finding it too late to reverse his course, Springer quarterback gets swamped by aggressive PG back Nate Hines.

At the defensive halfback position, André Holmes intercepts a Hopewell pass.

Homecoming win halts losing streak

The Royals came back the second half of the season winning three and tying one of the remaining five games. In the annual Homecoming game, the Royals took a decisive victory over Dinwiddie. Because of injuries, PG went to the air, and the pinpoint passing of Jimmy Toombs and receptions by Ronnie Wade put the game out of reach. The Royals then combined all forces as they traveled to victimize their arch-rivals Hopewell, 21-6. In the early minutes of the game, Toombs found Wade open over the middle for six points. After Keith Collins recovered a fumbled punt inside the Devil 20 yard line, Nate Hines hit from the two. With spirits high the mighty Royals faced unbeaten Petersburg. With a 7-0 deadlock at halftime, PG needed desperately to get on the scoreboard. To much surprise Nate Hines hit Ronnie Wade on a perfectly executed halfback pass. James Taylor later lunged over from two yards out, but the clock ran out and Petersburg remained undefeated, 21-14. Michael Mayton led the defense against the Midlothian Trojans as Jimmy Toombs guided a superior offense. Taylor and Toombs paced the scoring attack with 14 points each. Jim Folaros and Nate Hines added points to the high scoring 42-14 Royal victory.

The 1971 football squad constituted a far superior year than the won-loss column revealed. PG dropped four of their five losses by seven points or less. With the magnitude of the number one unit in the district and possibly the state, the Royals lacked the final minute breaks to pull out desired victories. A remarkable offense controlled by the Jimmy Toombs-Ronnie Wade combination broke all PG passing and scoring records. Toombs, termed the most outstanding in PG history, exceeded the 1,000 yard passing mark and completed better than 50% of his passes. Although PG scored 34 more points than their opponents, the 4-5-1 record did not tell the true gridiron story.

Manchester victory checks Royal losing streak

"You have to pay the price," chanted Coach Harold Smith as the 71-72 basketball season rolled into full swing. As a result of long practices and hard work the Royals molded into a new team. Headed by Sylvester Reese and Bill Claiborne the Royal squad plowed into the "mini-gym" preparing for non-district foe, Patrick Henry. The Patriots' hot handed shooting and rebounding strength delivered the Royals their first loss of the season. PG then traveled to Meadowbrook where things brightened for the Royals, but a last second shot at the buzzer in the second overtime gave PG their second loss, 66-64. The Hopewell Blue Devils followed with PG giving the first place team all they could handle, only to fall in the final minutes of play 58-51. Dinwiddie and Midlothian ended the same, as the PG cage-men missed crucial shots and

Prince George held a five game losing streak. Though the Royal seemed fated, pride and spirit remained high and the netters too, on Manchester. With razzle-dazzle ball handling from Rickey Reese and rebounding strength from John Bott, Ronnie Wade, and Bill Claiborne, the Royals grabbed their first season win, setting off a chain reaction of come-back victories which boosted team morale that had dropped to a crucial low

Royals tagged hottest team in Central District

After the disappointing first half, the determined Royals needed a come back and put it to a test again when Patrick Henry visited PG. With John Bott playing his best game of the season and scoring a career high of 19 points, the Royals pulled out a 67-58 victory. With this impressive win under their belts, the Royals traveled to Central District foe, Hopewell. The Devils jumped off with a quick lead and by half time held a 34-29 edge. PG came fighting back behind the shooting of Ronnie Wade and Bill Claiborne to narrow the margin to within one but never managed to move ahead. The next two games went to the bitter end as PG began an astonishing winning streak. The Royals defeated the Dinwiddie Generals and Meadowbrook in the final seconds by a combined total of 4 points. At Midlothian, the first half seemed to foreshadow the end of the two game winning streak, but the Royals blazed out of the locker room to a thrilling upset, 63-50. Only three days later, PG took another win over Manchester 70-60. The fired up Royals ended with a mind satisfying 6-12 record after what looked somewhat faded in the opening contests of the season.

When wrestling season approached PG, Coach Tom Lesniak had thoughts of an even season, but his dreams vanished and the destined Royals fell with a disappointing season record of 0-8. The lack of interest, ineligibility, student apathy, and other reasons all contributed to the Royals winless season. The Royal matmen plagued with forfeits consequently gave up an average of 12 points per match. The Royals pressed for victory against Maggie Walker but with two forfeits PG felt an agonizing 33-24 defeat. Against Dinwiddie the Royals fought a losing battle but managed to hang on until the last individual match only to go down in defeat, 36-24. Bobby Wood and Bobby Wheeler pulled out an impressive 5-3 individual record each, while second year man Paul Flanagan accomplished a 3-4-1 season to keep team hopes alive for the district tournament.

President Kevin Cummings, under the sponsorship of Miss Ruth Martin, directed the Student Cooperative Association. Improvement of unfavorable school conditions stood out as one of the specific goals the SCA members tried to reach. Overcrowded classrooms, the tardy system, and smoking circumstances accounted for some of the bigger problems. Officers and representatives decided that student voice played an important part in seizing this goal. Realizing the students' apathy, Kevin attempted to create some interest by talking to each of the English classes. They planned assemblies, but it appeared that they caused excessive disorder and confusion due to lack of space in the gymnasium. The administration decided that they would disregard them except when something of importance aroused. By eliminating the convertibles to introduce the contestants, the SCA changed the Homecoming program which turned out with notable achievement and success.

The traditional pep chain contest for the Homecoming game overflowed the treasury with Junior pennies. Added to the winter calendar of events last year, the Basketball Homecoming highlighted the end of the season. The renamed PG "mini" gym captured the excitement of the Homecoming activities.

Languages rouse student interest

Seeking to attain its goal, the Spanish Club set out to arouse student interest. Honeymooning south of the border last summer, club sponsor, Señora Kerkhoff sparked activity in the first meeting with colorful slides of Mexico. Excitement mounted when the notion came up to make piñatas for Christmas entertainment. Scavenging newspapers from anywhere, members ripped and glued strips to a balloon base. Florescent paint and a wiggly foil tail added finishing touches to what resembled a pig and butterfly. Blindfolded members swung aimlessly at the candy filled objects, hoping for a lucky swing to flood the room with goodies. Word of the new-fashioned club spread and its attendance doubled since last year.

On October 16, in midst of rain and mud, the German Club members remained headstrong in determination to wash as many cars as humanly possible between 10:00 and 5:00. Despite the bad weather, a great profit generously boosted the monetary status of the club. "Candy selling Day" arrived early in December as the German Club members campaigned to raise enough funds for their annual Christmas party. The Christmas party turned out a success as Prince George hosted neighboring Dinwiddie and Colonial Heights German Clubs.

The unusual tapping ceremonies took place in the spring and fall. Each member repeated the motto in French, "A man who knows two languages is worth two men," as the candle of knowledge moved from hand to hand.

Maggie Winfield, president, added amusement to the French Club. An entirely French dinner served at her home proved a welcome treat for the club members. A trip to the Valentine Museum in November gave members an opportunity to examine French paintings as well as art work from several other foreign countries.

Beta Club, National Honor Society hold tappings

The National Honor Society, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ruth Swineford, elected Billy Beachy president. The following meeting existed for volunteering to bring refreshments for the November 18 tapping. Seventeen students, who attained a "B" average and displayed qualities of leadership, and good character, received nominations. After the tapping, teachers and the newly inducted members accompanied by their proud parents, attended a tea in the cafeteria.

The Beta Club began the school year with a new sponsor, Mrs. Marjorie Crichton. Betas raised money washing cars and selling utility cloths to pay for registration fees for members attending the Beta Convention in Roanoke. Convention delegates elected Kevin Cummings State Secretary. Volunteer Betas rang bells in front of city merchant stores for the Salvation Army at Christmas and again collected donations for the Prince George Lions Club White Cane Day.

BETA CLUB

Walter Seal and Mrs. Swineford discuss the preliminaries involved in the National Honor Society tapping ceremony. NHS president, Billy Beachy, asks for the nominees to come forward at the fall tapping.

New initiates wait patiently to say their National Honor Society pledge. Mr. Rockwell presents Marianne MacGregor with a Beta Club certificate.

Momentarily disturbed, Donna Snead works with Hilda Holloman at Beta Club Car Wash.

Expecting business to pick up, Pam Blair and other workers take a quick break between steady customers.

Linda Fuller accepts congratulations and her Beta Club pin from Bruce Harmata.

Art, Library invade old capital

Unique boutiques, the common scene during lunch blocks, helped the Art Club raise enough money for an excursion to Williamsburg. Change steered the artists toward replacing ancient and dust collected paintings in the lobby into modern eyecatchers. Regular meetings, where all the members rapped about trips and other planned activities, created a feeling of unity throughout the whole group.

Small but energetic, the active Library Club sponsored a book fair during the week of December 6-10 open to students, teachers, and visiting Tri-city citizens. The club collected paperback books to send to Vietnam fighting men. As a service club, the group confirmed itself as an irreplaceable asset to the library, helping the librarian by signing out books, collecting late book dues, shelving and keeping books straight.

LIBRARY CLUB

Using colorful bows, Debbie Richards thumbtacks decorations to Art Club door as Herbert Thweatt observes. Trying to make a sale, Carol Blassengill exhibits boutique goods to Kathy Prince. Eddie Campbell scans over titles on books in the Library Club book fair. Inventing new advertisement ideas, members talk over December book fair. Sylvia Marks packages appreciated paperbacks to USO in Cam Ranh Bay.

Verla Sulc and Sharon Kluth stick candy canes to campaign buttons.

Member-at-large candidate, Kathy Chudoba, packs away her campaign sign. Waiting for people to settle down, Rose King ponders over Christmas party plans. Shirley Harrison unwinds an FBLA calendar for Janice Angell to inspect design.

Capturing the holiday fever, Trudy Hutzell, Debbie Robinson, and Betsy Bonfanti decorate presents for the needy.

Sharon Oakley begins an early morning meeting by outlining upcoming club plans.

The Future Teachers of America began the year with a car wash to secure money for future club plans. Sponsor Miss Preston, president Susan DeWolf, and two selected members attended the Richmond state convention on December 10 to exchange ideas in teaching methods. Members honored the Hopewell FTA with a Christmas party before the holidays. During the spring, as customary, the club members worked as "teachers' aids," getting a better idea of teachers' responsibilities. Members visited Longwood College to gather more information on requirements on becoming a teacher and to Beazley Elementary School to observe a normal classroom situation and teachers at work.

Students interested in business joined the Future Business Leaders of America, with Sharon Oakley as presiding officer. The club decorated numerous bulletin boards around the school and the door to room 106 during the Christmas season. Members journeyed to a neighboring business and attended the state convention in Richmond. Supporting their activities, the FBLA sold calendars and scented candles to stock up on needed funds.

Future Farmers, Homemakers bring home competitive honors

Industrious homemakers started their many activities early in the summer. Leslie Wallace attended the State Homemakers Convention, where PG won the honorable chapter award. A "first" in the history of the club, the Prince George Future Homemakers awarded Jennifer Brown, a Longwood college student teacher, honorable membership. FHA'ers stuffed Thanksgiving straw baskets for underprivileged families. Junior high and high school members combined efforts to enjoy a festive Christmas party on December 16. Skits, panel discussions, and lectures seasoned the monthly gatherings. During the spring, a bake sale in the Walnut Mall and a boutique sale at school replenished the empty treasury.

Selected Future Farmers traveled to Blacksburg for the State Convention, where they exchanged ideas on farming methods. In high spirits, members went on an excursion to the State Fair, where they observed cattle judging and other rural procedures. The club got into the holiday spirits as they decorated the county yule tree. With the return of spring came the annual tree, soil, and swine judging contests and the project competition for the scholarship given by the Ruritan Club yearly to an FFA senior.

Mr. Pierce instructs Bill Ford in stringing lights on the county Christmas tree. Chucky Wyche looks over his cedar before a tree judging contest in Waverly. Debbie Headly and Paula Minor relate the Christmas story to Leslie Wallace in a Christmas narrative.

Mrs. Rice scowls at Leslie Wallace as she pauses over the last FHA minutes. Brenda Wall and Debbie Moncol humor Karen Hill and Debbie Johnson before getting down to FHA business.

CHOIR
*Christmas spirit
 gears results*

The Christmas spirit took hold in both the Choir and Para-Medical Club. While the Choir serenaded audiences at Walnut Mall, the county Christmas party, and at the school assembly, the Para-Medical Club collected $287 from the student body for Christmas seals. Judy Tyler competed for Prince George in the Miss Christmas Seal Contest directed by the Southside Tuberculosis Youth Board. Hard work also resulted in preparation of a Christmas basket for the needy. The spirit continued throughout the year as the Choir presented their annual Spring Concert, performed at graduation, and attended regional chorus. With Earl Thweatt as assistant director and Claire Rott as accompanist, Mrs. Horne trained the Choir toward perfection. Service to others and inform students of available careers in medical or paramedical fields motivated the Para-Medical Club to keep their Christmas spirit by collecting food and clothing for the children at Central State in the spring. Mrs. Barber, club sponsor, awaited invitations from neighboring schools for club visitation to learn more of career possibilities of medical and paramedical opportunities.

PARA-MEDICAL CLUB

Sighing with relief, Claire Rott boards the bus for a Christmas excursion to Virginia State College.

Joe Bennett, Alexander Thweatt, and Bernard Hill entertain last minute Christmas shoppers at the Walnut Mall. Much to the amusement of the audience, director Earl Thweatt rushes back to seat the baffled choir.

Para-Medical members activate discussion toward the raising of money for the Miss Christmas Seal Pageant. Sherry Herald excitedly turns over the check for $287.00 to the TB Youth Board for Christmas Seals.

Pleased with the large amount of money raised, Mrs. Arlene Barber pins sash on Judy Tyler, Miss Christmas Seal candidate from Prince George.

Starlette Kathy Allin radiates smile of confidence in homecoming appearance. Highsteppers Ty Braswell and Guy Warthan liven up powderpuff half-time. Mr. Gallop labors over the steaming pot of brunswick stew. Keeping in beat with the Christmas music during assembly, Mr. Gallop nervously conducts the musicians. Scurrying to finish stage decorations, princettes Barbara Miller and Gwen Moore snip paper tree ornaments. Royal band members move into formation, initiating halftime ceremony of homecoming festivities.

Stew hauls in loot for trip

Many hours of work on and off the practice field kept PG bandmen on the move. After school practices and parades readied them for the Orange Bowl Parade, nationally televised on New Year's Eve. Money raising projects included the usual candy sales, and an all night brunswick stew—bake sale hauled in $600 for the trip south. Friday night football drew support from a group of spirited volunteer musicians in the form of the pepband when the whole band did not perform. Home game, away game, and pep rally supporters screamed "Royals dynamite" to the thump of the pepband's drum. Drum major Ty Braswell's creative mind organized the sideline activity in the Junior-Senior powderpuff game. Stunning the crowd, wigged male band members, dressed in skimpy sequined outfits, marched to the music of the all volunteer band.

Upsetting study hall quiet, Exchange editor Ruth Everson peddles newspaper to Cliff Keesler.

Last minute check for deadline calls Scribe staff to early morning meeting. Newspaper staff members scan Christmas edition of Ye Royal Scribe before lunch block onrush.

Scraping for change, Maggie Wingfield makes cupcake sale at Cavalier Square.

During student-faculty basketball game,

Melissa Dunn bellows out ancient old cheers to resound student chants.

Linda Polland, Maggie Wingfield, Randy Brown, and Janet Schultz use free time in English class to criticize literary magazine entries.

LITERARY MAGAZINE

On October 11, the newspaper staff whizzed around selling the first issue of Ye Royal Scribe. In between crowded news columns, the staff squeezed in student opinions, political views and current school events. A two week sale of psychedelic posters raised the money fund and brightened up classroom walls. Sponsor Mrs. Cindy Merrix and five staff members grasped new ideas and discovered past mistakes at the VHSL convention in Charlottesville on November 19.

Sponsor Mrs. Kay Carwile and an alert staff began their financial drive for the literary magazine in the beginning months of the school year. Selling colorful note paper, past issues of the magazine, and heading the student-faculty basketball game, money rolled into the Etcetera treasury. After hours of reading and screening out numerous literary selections submitted by students, the annual publication arrived from the publisher in May selling at $1.50 a copy.

*Publications reveal
'right on' scene*

Making ad sales and squeezing a dollar out of supporters for a booster began in mid-summer for the Peerage staff. Redrawing final drafts, counting character units, and midnight work sessions recruited the nearly all new staff into a rolling team. On Saturday afternoon, October 30, tired and smoky members delivered 400 quarts of brunswick stew to Tri-city families, raising $345 for spot color in the '72 Peerage. Sponsor Mrs. Collins and editor Becca Lilley zoomed to New York on a whisper jet to the Columbia University Convention where the '71 yearbook received the medalist award. After returning from the VHSL awards workshop on November 20, another first place certificate crowded the annual office wall, and new layout designs and screened photography gave new ideas a boost for the 1972 edition of the Peerage.

Smoky staff slings out stew

Layout editor, Brenda White, checks out picture cropping perfection during second period study hall. Mrs. Alice Lilley and yearbook sponsor, Mrs. Collins, struggle to debone 52 pressure-cooked chickens. Crowding the cafeteria annex for an after school meeting, yearbook workers wait for individual deadline assignments. Trisha Bogese, Becca Lilley, and Lynn Spiers squish up whole canned tomatoes before adding them to the brunswick stew concoction. After receiving first place yearbook VHSL award, Trisha Bogese and Jane Cole scuttle and slide down a UVA hill before the long ride back to PG. Eileen England peels the last potato before passing it down the "assembly line" to the brunswick stewpot.

Santa 'drops in' on students

The PG Royal Band presented the annual Christmas assembly on December 17. Mr. Mazza coordinated the program in the gym, decorated in gleaming Christmas style. The lively majorettes, dressed as toys and fairy tale characters, gaily escorted Frosty the Snowman, (Mr. Allen in disguise), onto the inner stage. Santa Claus arrived in a more original style — from the ceiling of the stage. Receiving a warm welcome, Santa read the traditional Christmas letter. Student assistant, Earl Thweatt, along with Mrs. Horne, led the choir while Mr. Gallop batoned the Royal musicians in arrangement of holiday tunes and seasonal carols.

Whole hearted support from various clubs and organizations captured the spirit of PG students. Between the tapping of honor students, selling of paperback books, a trip to a museum, and other activities, each club contributed an educational outside affair. The energetic Future Business Leaders wrapped food and toys for a needy Tri-City family. As a civic favor, the Future Farmers hung Christmas lights on a tree at Prince George Courthouse. Varsity lettermen ordered and received their letter jackets before the holidays.

Leaders view different locales

A little food and a lot of fun did wonders in camouflaging the learning process with frequent field trips enlivening the dull routine of school life. Students envied leaders who shifted from class time to the "big time" in New York City. A trip to Columbia University and the University of Virginia acquainted junior Becca Lilley with both travel opportunities and gigantic headaches of a "greenhorn" yearbook editor. Trips to Petersburg General caused a soar in Paramedical membership. Student heads met at Thomas Dale to swap ideas and devour roast beef.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Decision making customer thinks over shoe choice while Herbert Thweatt waits for final sale answer.

Crackling wood fire singes cooking pork at famous King's Barbeque. Eileen England orders morning snack at the Custard Corner before returning from picture taking session.

Passing time, Volunteer Emergency Crew workers polish up the front fenders and check under hood.

Unselfishness disintegrated into burning fuel essential for escaping death. Accepting donations without stifling self-assurance firmly controlled the raging bonfire. Preserved inward-pride shared the sensation of a job well done stabilizing the mere existence of blistering gratification.

Halligan's
C and W Supermarket
Garrett's Esso Station

Halligan's*

Your advantages in patronizing Garrett's Esso Station include road service, reliable auto repairs, and 24-hour wrecker service. Stop at Garrett's on Broadway and Randolph, Hopewell.

Attention peanut farmers! Need someone to buy your produce? Try Halligans who also carries a good stock of household and farm needs.

"Quality at low prices" characterizes C and W Supermarket located on Route 460.

Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas, produced the 1972 Peerage with special help from local representative, Danny De-Falco. Carolyn Jolly designed the cover, embossed with two applied colors. Endsheets, title page, and divider art came from Maggie Wingfield. The headline type is Futura Book Oblique — 30 point for headlines, 18 point for kickers. Body type is Vogue, complimented with bold print — 12 point for body copy, 10 point for captions, 9 point for statistics, and 8 point for the index.

Eight seniors, nineteen juniors, and six sophomores worked long, hectic hours after school and all day Saturdays to produce the 240 pages of the 1972 Peerage. Cooperation from others keyed understanding and its success. The staff appreciated the help and assistance of the administrators, Mr. George, Mr. Rockwell, and Mr. Thomas, and from the faculty. Special thanks go to teachers who excused students for picture taking excursions and understood the meaning and hassle of a crucial deadline. For their never dying patience, the '72 staff recognizes Mr. John Janosko, Mrs. Nancy Wells, and Mrs. Bernadine Anderson for trivial requests of staff members, accepting last minute announcements, and rides home from afternoon meetings. Saving the day, photo contributions from newspapers, The Hopewell News and The Progress-Index filled up deadline layout switches. Credit goes to the professional photographers George Lamm, Jr. and especially to Don Hash who often came to rescue the staff from a last minute phone call to cover an event. Mr. Lynn Phillips of School Pictures, Inc. and Mr. Dwight Saine of Delmar Studios also contributed class pictures and action candids for several sections. Special recognition from the Peerage staff spotlights on Mr. Danny De-Falco. Resulting in trips to PG, this Taylor yearbook representative tried to initiate an almost entirely new staff and a green advisor. The greatest contributor, the PG student body, created the content for the '72 yearbook and made possible the 19th publication of the PGHS Peerage.

Staff thanks friends, students

Commenting to salesgirl, Janice Angell views elegant bracelet of Lauterbach's at 122 North Sycamore Street, Petersburg. On the Sunshine Corner in Hopewell, Eddie Campbell stops by Gary's Men and Boys to check size on some merchandise.

Class spirit rides high at PG

Spirit at Prince George dwindled during the summer, but the students regained their pep after the season opened with a victory. Seniors held the spirit stick once again while underclassmen battled to gain it. In the competition for the pep chain, juniors defeated seniors and sophomores. Each year the spirit seemed to grow not only in sports but also in school life. Juniors received much response from their first money-making project, the selling of candy. Sophomore spirit showed through in the reaction gained in the sale of all-occasion cards. They also took on much responsibility in organizing and planning a talent show.

'B' students exempt finals

Christmas time came and went, but for most students fun and parties remained vague as the thought of exams haunted their minds. Finding the exam schedule changed upset students and caused a lot of confusion. The school board members decided on one exam a day for six days to end the first semester but returned to the old procedure for the end of the year. Juniors and sophomores with a "B" average for their first five six weeks exempted their final exams in June.

Even after strenuous studying, exam questions stump students. Exhausted from the strain of exams, Kendall Bzdek flops on gym floor to catch up on lost sleep. Completely engrossed in his book, Paul Cooper stashes away forgotten information before next exam.

Peerage staff increases ad sales

Increased ad sales of more than $1000 and selling 600 yearbooks made it possible for the '72 Peerage to include many new and exciting added attractions. Spot color, posterization, and reverse type created a new look for the PG yearbook. Staff members worked hard selling yearbook subscriptions before school and during the lunch blocks. The cafeteria annex became a second home to most, as they spent free time after school and on Saturdays preparing the book for press.

The variety of sports offered to students at Prince George demonstrated the quality of PG's athletic program. The opening of the '71 fall season brought varsity football and girls' basketball in focus, and again the mighty Royal fans crowded to the bleachers and cheered the team on to a victory. The winter season sports, basketball and wrestling, revealed Royal talent through teamwork and individual effort. Warm weather moved fans outdoors for track, softball, baseball, and golf. The more conservative students, not interested in fast moving active sports, found a position in the newly organized Chess Club, turning in a perfect no loss record.

Talley, Becky — 28

Quiet, sleepy-eyed seniors gathered at the high school for their senior trip, but once on the buses excitement rang out from every window. Jokes, spirit chants, songs, and competition cheers sounded as the seniors amused themselves on the long ride to Charlottesville. Upon arriving at UVA, students toured the campus before settling down for the game. Royals cheered PG alumnus Ron Rusnak of UNC to a magnificent win over Virginia. After the game, the class returned to the buses. To break the monotony of a bumpy bus ride home, the S and W Cafeteria in Richmond made the scene for a quick stop for supper.

Unconformity bursts free

A spark, disguised as a worthless ember, strayed unnoticed from the raging fire. Its destiny known, the flickering warmth wandered overhead searching for an imprisoned world. The spark revealed power, shattering the bolted lock and setting free life ready to carry on the characteristics of a new wild-born fire.

Annoyed with extra exam time, Dexter James cleans nails in room quiet.
